Murder – with a big M

By GLENN LESTER, who tackled the Big M for the first time and made it.

It was three kilometres from the finish when I really knew we were all on our own out there in the big oven called the Big M marathon.

I turned to the runner next to me for sympathy and encouragement. I had never seen him before. You don't pick and choose when your feet are on fire.

The boldness of my question slightly astounded me, and even more so him. Me: "Make sure I keep running or else I won't finish." Him: "What the hell do you think I'm trying to do".

He soon left this wandering, hurting, thirsting runner, who somehow made it to the line with a grandstand finish which succeeded only in making me vomit.

No sooner had I started to dry retch than two shoulders caught the flagging body. Then I was in the bowels of the GPO lying on a makeshift bed. In marathon ward one.

A young first-aid attendant, like many in that large hall, became a Florence Nightingale as she doused prostrate bodies with superbly-moist cloths.

Where do I send a donation, I asked her. Her answer was the nicest part of the day — "we are volunteers, like the people who ran in the marathon". That said it all.

More than 5000 people turned out to run 26 miles 385 yards on a day which promised a very warm 27 deg. C and a mountain of suffering.

Thousands more lessened the pain, the debilitating effects of the sun and the hard roads, by squirting hoses, giving drinks, and encouragement, handing out water-laden sponges.

This, I thought to myself as the runners walked, trotted and finally ran away from the start, must be one of the greatest sporting events in Australia. Why, one day it may almost match the Boston M.

But the feet are sore nine hours later, and the memory still strong of that gargantuan snake of people between Frankston and Melbourne. All suffering.

Many went too fast early, caught up in the trance. And as sure the Big M is tough, they slowed and they walked. But hundreds kept going.

I remember the man who screamed at the start, seconds after the gun. He was hobbing in tremendous pain. Perhaps a victim of the crowding, perhaps a hamstring.

I remember those who "blew up". I did myself several times. The "wall" didn't come at 20 miles, as it was supposed to. It came early.

I remember drinking what seemed like gallons of Staminaade, water and even, God forbid, lemonade. And feeling bloated but taking the next offering just up the road.

And I remember a friend who asked an assurance before the race. Whatever happens out there don't let it stop you running another marathon.

That wasn't the stuff confidence is made of. But the answer is yes. Bring on next year, only please, before "summer" arrives.
